

7. It is Grandma's 85th birthday. People in the family talk about gifts for her. "I give her a photo," says Brian. "I take it with my new camera (照相机). What gift do you want to give her?" he asks his 5-year-old brother Mike.

"I don't know," says Mike. "I don't have a camera. And I don't know what to prepare."

Mike goes into the kitchen. His mum is busy cooking.

"Mum, what do you want to give to Grandma?"

"I make her favourite cake," says Mike's mum.

"I can't make cakes. I don't know how to do them," says Mike.

He goes to his sister's room. "Susan, what do you give to Grandma?"

"I make her a birthday card," says Susan.

"I'm not good at drawing. I don't know how to make it," says Mike.

He then goes and sits next to Grandma on the sofa. "Everyone has a gift for you, but me. I can't take a photo, cook or draw. I don't have anything to give you," says Mike with an unhappy face.

Grandma puts her arms (胳膊) around the little boy. "No one (没有人) has the time to come and stay with me. That's what you can give me," says Grandma.

Mike feels happy and says "Happy Birthday" to his grandma.
